ART-TROPE, New Generation of Artists Agency, organizes the exhibition "INTERSECTION" by presenting a selection of its Artists.

Colors and B&W (Black and White) have long been synonyms of opposition. To the purity of the B&W answered a profusion of colors then said to be misleading since it diverted Art from its true subject: line and form. "In a sustainable plastic work it is the form that comes first and everything else should be submitted to it" wrote Le Corbusier.

To the contrary, the exhibition "INTERSECTION" proposes to revive the connections between these two worlds. Like ancient Greeks, the idea is to see colors as a continuous line in which B&W are both ends. As a result, colors and B&W embody two languages that the presented Artists use to express their own artistic sensitivity.

From painting to photography and sculpture the Artworks echo one another to tell together "adventures in colors" like Photographer Rémy Donnadiou used to say. ART-TROPE invites its Artists to present their pictorial language to unveil the INTERSECTION between colors and B&W. Through the interplay of artistic correspondences, the exhibition opens new perspectives on the contact point between different ways of expression that finally nothing opposes.
